Great Excitement.

The great excitement is over. The past week will be recorded in history as Richmond's greatest success, and it will ever be remembered as the Great Reunion of 1896. Now that all will have a chance to think of themselves again our offerings this week embrace some golden opportunities. While we mention only a few lines of goods every department in the store has something to offer that is an unusual value.

The incoming trains from Roanoke, Clif-ton Forge, and other points brought large crowds and the county people came mostly by private conveyance.

A PARADE.

The programme was opened with a parade, participated in by quite a number of people, organizations, etc. The Salem band furnished excellent music for the occasion. The wind up of the parade was in the grove, where the crowd had gathered to hear the orator of the day, Hon. William A. Glasgow, Jr., of Roanoke, Judge John J. Allen introduced the speaker, and for fully an hour Mr. Glasgow held his hearers spellbound. WAS WELL RECEIVED.

His speech was well received, and at times was loudly applauded. Rain com-menced before Mr. Glasgow could close, and the people were forced to scatter for shelter and dinner.

Horse-racing was next on the pr gramme and this was followed with game of base-ball between the Buchan-lean and the same and the buchangame of base-ball between the Buchanan learn and a team from Lynchburg. The bone team led off, and it was thought that the Hill City boys would be shut out, but they went to work and redeemed themselves, and at the end of the ninth inning the game stood 15 to 14 in favor of Buchanan bowels are loose. tion of Ex-Governor Nichols.

Winchester was astir early this orning in anticipation of the exercises nument erected in Stonewall Cemetery The city was handsomely decorated for nother in extending hospitality and hearty greeting. By 12 o'clock at least strangers were here. The Louisianians arrived last night on a speial train, and were met by Turner-Ashby Camp, Confederate Veterans, and scorted to the homes of the citizens, who are entertaining them.

THE PROCESSION. Promptly at noon the procession formed and moved through the principal streets the city to the cometery in the following order: Colonet Zable, chief marshal Assistants, Messrs. Oscar Barr, L. L. nion Cornet Band; Ashby Guard, Cap Union Cornet Band; Asaby Guard, Cap-tain A. M. Moore; carriages containing Charles Broadway Rouss, speakers, invited guests, and ladies; Friendship Band; Friendship Fire Company; Sarah Zane Drum Corps and Fire Company; Union Fire Company; Rouss Hook-and Ladder Company, and civic organizations.

THE EXERCISES. At the cemetery the exercises began with an address of welcome by Mayor Williams, of Winchester, and response by General Barksslale, of New Orleans, followed by prayer by Rev. P. D. Stephenson, D. D., of the Washington Artillery. Then came the presentation of the monu-

ORATION OF THE DAY.

ORATION OF THE DAY.

The speaker then paid an eloquent tribute to the valor of the Louisiana soldiers, as well as to those of Virginia, and said that the gallant deets of the southern army were the heritage of the North as well as of the South. He closed his beautiful oration by pledging the loyalty of the South to the republe.

The exercises were closed with the benedetion, pronounced by Rev. J. P. Hyde, D. D., chaplain of Turner Ashby Camp, Confederate Veterans.

After the exercises Mr. Charles Broadway Rouss held a public reception at the house of Mr. T. M. Bantz, on Market street. A throng of people, including many of the Louisianians, paid their respects to Mr. Houss. The day, taking it all in all, was a great success, and old Winchester is extending genuine Virginia hospitality to the strangers within her gates.

SCOTLAND NECK. Temperance Association Quarterly

Meeting-Baptist Unions. SCOTLAND NECK, N. C., July 4--The Hallfax County chall-The Hallax County remperance Association held its quarterly meeting here Thursday night, with a business session yesterday morning. At night an interesting programme was rendered. A recitation by Miss Besste Shields was well received, and was very impressive, well received, and was very impressive, as was also a duet by Mrs. E. T. Whitehead and Miss Mary Laurence. Dr. D. B. Zollicoffer, of Garysburg, delivered a strong and eloquent temperance rddress, and capitivated the large audience. Mr. W. H. Bond rendered a beautiful solo. Mr. W. A. Dunn, who gave an address of welcome to the association at the opening, at the close offered a resolution of thanks to the association for coming, and especially to Dr. Zollicoffer for his address.

Yesterday morning at a business meet-Yesterday morning at a business meeting of the association, it was decided to advise with the County Examiner for the public schools to see whether or not the law requiring the children to study the effects of alcohol on the human system is being complied with. It was the sense of the association that if it is a good law, it ought to be obeyed; but, if not, enforcing it will repeal it. President H. P. Troy, of Weldon, expressed himself as well pleased with the pressed himself as well pleased with the work of this session of the association. To-day the Warren and Roanoke unions of the Tar-River Baptist Association ser in session at Roanoke Rapids. A beauti-ful Baptist church has been built in that new town, and will soon be dedicated. Rev. R. T. Vaun, Messrs N. Biggs, and E. E. Hilliard are in attendance upon the meetics.

water, and as it was not needed until lately, it was not used. Recently the well was tapped for domestic purposes, and the users noticed an exhibitating effect, like that produced by old wine, followed the use of water. This is attested by several sponsible persons, all of whom says that no evil effects follow the use of the water, like those following the use of bear or whisky.

There is known to be a hidden well somewhere in Eastern Putnam county, where a toper, it is said, threw a tengallon keg of old apple brandy on sweargallon keg of old apple brandy on swearing off. The keg was never dug out,

The recent discoveries at the French excavations of Delphi are of great importance and interest. The most exciting find is that of a large bronze statue in excellent preservation, the left arm being the only part that is wanting. The eyes are enamelled, and add much to the lifelius appearance of the head. In stone instances the eyes let into bronze heads were of twory, with colored pasts for the iris, while in the gold and typry statues prectous stones were used. With the 'w bronze statue fragments of a chariot and bronze statue fragments of a chariot and of horses were found.

With a high degree of probability, this statue has been identified with that representing Hiero, tyrant of Syracuse, who was twice victor at the Pythian games in was twice victor at the Pythian games in the riding-race, and once in the charlot-race, in the years 86, 82, 69, 80. 60 B. C. He also carried off three victories with his horses at Olympia, and one at Thebes. The immortal fame, however, of this Hiero, son of Deinomenes, rests upon the giory which literary men have cast over him. Pindar made his victories the subjects of some of the finest odes, and Xenophon named a dialogue 'Hiero,' in which the Syracusan tyrant converses with the poet Simonides. In the rewly discovered statue we probably have a monument con-emporating one of the Pythian victories sung by Pindar. It must by a thrilling suggestion to any lover of ancient civilization and culture to have an adequate contemporary situatisation to the ode of the greatest lyric poet after more than twenty-four centuries.

poet after more than twenty-four centuries.

For the light shed upon the history of ancient art the work is of supreme importance. Pausanias describes the bronze statues of Hiero's race-horses at Olympia, which were the joint work of two of the greatest sculptors of the day, the immediate precursors of Phydias-namely, Onatas of Egina, and Kalamis, of Athens. The Delphi statue, being an original work by an artist of the time, will, no doubt, throw considerable light upon the art of that interesting period. There is, by-theway, a pretty story told by Piny concerning the horses of Kalamis, which shows the good-fellowship among artists and the generous nature of the great Praxiteles: "In order that kalam smous not appear inferior in his statues of men.
